IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

Mark The Dedication of The New Baptist Church. Large Congregation Hear Dr. M. P. Hunt—Other Services Of The Day.

The Springfield Baptist Church, that has been in the course of construction for the past twelve months is completed, and the beautiful and commodious structure was dedicated on Sunday, May 1, 1910. Dr. M. P. Hunt, of Louisville, was invited to and did preside at the dedication services. He preached to a large audience a strong sermon, his text being "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The first part of the service consisted in the presentation of some beautiful lilies, with the greeting of the Danville Baptist church, delivered by the pastor, Dr. Everett Gill. Next the pastor presented to the church a pulpit Bible, which was most cordially received by the congregation. After the sermon by Dr. Hunt he announced that he wanted to and was going to raise $6,000 to pay off the balance of the debt on the church. After a protracted effort on the part of Dr. Hunt and the pastor on the rostrum, and some capable assistants among the pews, it was announced that the sum desired had been raised. $500 of this sum was given by the Home Mission Board, of Atlanta, Ga., on condition that the church should be dedicated free of debt. The church building cost $22,000, approximately.

At the beginning of the service the pastor announced that on Jan. 29, 1884, the Springfield Baptist church was organized in the Methodist church of this place. Rev. J. M. Vaughan presided, and he read the 122nd and 133rd Psalms. There were but few members at that time. A few of the charter members were present, Sunday, among the number being the member who first signed the articles of organization. The membership has steadily increased until now there are about 325 communicants. After the church was organized, occasional services and some protracted meetings were held in the Methodist church until 1889-90, when the congregation concluded to build and erect the church on Main street, which was sold last year. This building was dedicated on the second Sunday in June 1892, during the pastorate of Rev. W. C. Cleveland. Before the building was completed, on April 27, 1890, the Springfield Baptist Sunday School was organized and a superintendent, and they have the same superintendent to-day whom they elected and who has been in continuous service in this capacity for over two decades.

The enrollment of the Sunday School is now 250, and the highest number present on any one day was 201, on the third Sunday in April, 1910. The Sunday school room in the new building is nicely fitted up and consists of an auditorium, surrounded by ten separate class rooms.

At the dedication Sunday, Dr. J. N. Prestreuge, editor of the Baptist World, published at Louisville, Ky., Dr. Everett Gill, pastor of the Danville Baptist church, Dr. J. W. McGlothlin, Professor at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, together with Dr. M. P. Hunt, were present and assisted the pastor in the services.

At 5:30 p. m. Dr. McGlothlin delivered a lecture on Missions to a well filled house, and at night Dr. McGlothlin preached a very strong sermon, his theme being, "Service."

After it had been announced that the money had been raised the dedicatory prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Harrison Williams.

A large crowd was in town and the house was packed at the morning services, about eight hundred people being present. After the services a bounteous and sumptuous dinner was served at the tobacco warehouse below the railroad.

When the congregation assembled at the Baptist church on last Sunday night the pastor called the church to order and the following motions were passed:

The pastor was instructed to extend to the Danville Baptist church the thanks of the Springfield Baptist church for the beautiful floral offering which was used to decorate the pulpit. The clerk was appointed to thank Mr. B. D. Lake for the use of the warehouse, in which the dinner was served. A motion was then made extending to the local press and members of the other churches of Springfield, the sincere appreciation felt by the members of the Springfield Baptist church for the kind treatment extended to them during the construction of the building. These motions were heartily passed and will become a matter of church record.

Sale of Lots.

Messrs. J. M. Young, J. M. Metrees and C. S. Hohn, promoters and real estate men, conducted a sale of town lots in Hondale, N. M., here on Saturday last. Mr. Young stated that they were out for the purpose of selling lots regardless of price and that sales would be made even to at sacrifice prices.

About thirty-five lots were sold to leading citizens of the town and county at an average price of $10 per lot. In the near future an excursion train is to be run to Hondale from some point in Kentucky and it is probable that some of the Washington county investors will take the trip.

Placed Under Bond.

An attachment came here Monday from the Washington county Circuit Court ordering that three of our most prominent citizens be placed under bond. These prominent citizens were J. A. B. Hohn and Night Pooleman and J. A. B. Hohn. These three gentlemen were summoned to testify in the case of Erastus Holdway for the killing of Thomas Ward at Cardwell on November election day. When the case was called at the October term of the court the gentlemen failed to obey the summons, and the court probably fearing that they would not appear at this term sent the attachment here, and the three promptly gave bail. They explained their neglect to appear by stating that the sheriff of Washington county had told them he would notify them if the case was called, or if it was postponed, and that he failed to do so. If the case had called, and their intention to go to Springfield to be on hand as witnesses.—Harrodsburg Herald.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

Several Cases Disposed of In 'Squire Hendren's Court.—Echoes From Judge Litssey's Tribunal.

'Squire Nimrod Hendren held a court last Thursday at Williamsburg, the results of which will no doubt prove quite salutary in the community. The 'Squire had several parties before the Court to answer contempt proceedings for taking a writ which he had issued and let them know that no monkey business went with his court. Messrs. Mattingly and Sweeney pleaded guilty to breach of the peace charges and were fined one cent and costs. J. W. Lewis was next tried for disturbing religious worship and a strong case was made out against him. The jury found him guilty and fixed his punishment at $20 fine and ten days confinement in the county jail.

There was sufficient evidence in this case to justify the issuance of half a dozen warrants against other parties.

On Monday afternoon an inquest was held before Judge Litssey, to inquire into the mental condition of R. H. Robertson, a farmer, who lives about two miles beyond Texas. Several neighbors testified that Mr. Robertson was demented and that the present attack is the second that he has suffered in. Mr. Robertson is also almost totally blind. The jury found that Mr. Robertson was a lunatic and he was yesterday taken to the Lakeland asylum.

Two cases against John Thomas Pines were called before Judge Litssey last Saturday but were continued until May 15th, because of the absence of witnesses. He is charged with carrying concealed a deadly weapon and with threatening to kill his neighbor.

Spalding-Hagan.

A wedding of more than ordinary interest was that of Miss Katherine Spalding to Chas. William Hagan, of Springfield, which took place Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at St. Augustine's church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Hogarty in the presence of quite a large number of the friends of the young people and immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Hagan left for the 10 o'clock train for a bridal trip. Mr. Evan Hagan, of Springfield, attended the groom as his best man, while Samuel J. Spalding stood with his sister, the bride, while the ceremony was being performed. The ushers were W. H. Rubel, B. S. Hughes, Robert Spalding and Lloyd O. McCarty, the latter of Springfield.

Both young people are popular and much admired and were remembered with many handsome gifts. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kate Spalding and her husband, Mr. Wm. Spalding, who is regarded as one of their best men. Upon their return to Lebanon Mr. and Mrs. Hagan will board with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, on East Main Street, Lebanon Enterprise.

Why Salves Fail to Cure Eczema.

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence a penetrating salve is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25c, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. ## BATTLE OF PERRYVILLE

Interestingly Reviewed by Long Run Correspondent in Letter To The Sun.

Wishing a few days off and to visit again the battlefield, a party of seven, headed by Will Elliott, "The Old Hunter," on the morning of the 20th of April, started to the Perryville battlefield, or, as it is sometimes called, the "Battle of Chaplin Hills," some six miles away. As we were going through Willis' he took us to the spot where he found a large lump of lead ore which proved to be very rich. A man by the name of Young, without knowing where this ore was, stated the exact spot, with a peach tree switch, which vein, he said, was eight feet under ground and twenty-five feet wide; also, when the large lump of ore was hidden in the orchard behind Willis' peach tree.

We soon left the soapstone ridges of eastern Washington, crossed over to the country line out onto the limestone hills of Western Boy, where Will found a grey fox track in the mud. These animals, he said, were plentiful in this country. Passing through three good-sized farms we came to the public road, near Martin's school house. Out this road, where we entered the western side of the Russell farm, we may expect to find our first relics. There come over us, as we enter the battlefield, a strange, indefinable feeling of admiration for the heroic, mingled with a love of country and sympathy for those of men who, far from home and friends, died on that memorable day.

Passing over several fields we came to the Russell house, made famous in history by Gen. Buell in his report of the battle. The house is some 40x15 and 15 feet high. By actual count it was 43 lines. We saw several bullet holes through the doors; the walls had been paped, thus hiding the holes on the inside. The house is now owned by Mr. Hayes May. The house was torn down some eight years ago. It was also struck many times by musket balls, while a cannon ball went clear through it. The top of the east chimney was also torn away by a cannon ball. We went down the road to where an old barn was burned during the battle; from here the writer went down through the garden to the old Henry Bottom's house, which is also of historical interest, and is now occupied by Mr. Sam Bottom, son of the former. We found him in good trim for talking and he answered many questions regarding the fight. He is preparing a history of the battle, to be issued in pamphlet form. The Bottoms were nearly grown up at that time, and though not a soldier was perfectly acquainted with the ground and was near during the battle and talked with many of the Blue and Gray. He has a good memory and is well qualified to write a good history.

This house is on the banks of Dee's fork, which runs from South to North through this field. It was from behind the stone walls that lined the western side of this stream that the rebels dealt out destruction and death. It was here that the 15th Kentucky received a baptism of fire, was repulsed three times and not a field officer was left. Col. Lytle was wounded and refused to be captured. Just on the brow of the hill, northwest of this house, where the first rebellion was held in 1862, Lee's "Battery" was planted, which was taken and recaptured three times. At this point Col. Lytle's men made such a stubborn stand that the Confederates, taking advantage of the ground, moved up a ravine, fell upon his right and rear, forcing his men to retire. The Fifteenth Kentucky lost sixty-six killed, one hundred and thirty wounded. This part of the field was all stained with blood on that fatal evening.

Our course was northward, over long flat ridges, covered mostly with dead weeds, which are still standing, with here and there a plowed field, the whole presenting a somewhat desolate appearance on this cool, cloudy spring day. In our imagination we can hear the bugle call, the prolonged roar of cannon, and the sharp report of small arms, mingled with dying groans, and we can see the swaying lines of the Blue and Gray, as each surged and beat against the other for the mastery. As we go on we find an old pear tree that early in the 70's we boys climbed and with our pocket knives cut from its branches a number of musket balls. It is still standing in a yard and is used as a shade tree.

At this place, Will, Bro. John Key and the writer are attacked by a large bull dog, which comes uncomfortably near; after trying to make friends with the beast and a good deal of hiding around "Patience ceased to be a virtue," so we tried, a small round stone, which struck the animal on a tender spot, which had the desired effect. We find several oak trees, which have escaped the woodman's axe, that still bear on their aged trunks, battle scars.

We are now on the spot where the second reunion was held in 1901. After crossing a hollow we come to Jackson's Ridge, and to the Confederate cemetery, which embraces a small plot of ground enclosed by a stone wall, where 507 rebel soldiers lie buried. Only one of these graves is marked and this only by a plain marble slab. The monument which stands near the center is some twenty feet high. On the pedestal is the figure of a rebel soldier, in full uniform and fully armed. Our friend Geo. Elliott asked why the statue was facing the South? Someone answered that the battlefield lay in that direction; this was a good answer but the questioner said, "He was looking toward his native land." A feeling of sadness crept over us as we looked upon the marble form of this lone sentinel, who is still surrounded by fallen comrades, while he keeps watch over this blood-stained field, a symbol of heroic struggle and a "Lost Cause," while his hard, stony features impress us as being manly and brave, and with a far away look seems to be looking and longing for home and loved ones in the Home land.

On the east and west sides are the names of the known ones who fell, with 444 unknown heroes. On each side we find one of the following beautiful verses.

On fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

No wreck, no tear, no cold, no winter's blight,
No time's remorseless doom,
Shall dim one ray of glory tonight
That glids your heroic tomb.

No braver band
For a brighter land,
Nor brighter land
Had cause so grand.

No shall your glory be forgot,
While fame her records keeps,
On poster points the halloved spot,
Where valor proudly sleeps.

THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE IDEA

From the Standpoint of the Most Interested Person—The Woman.

John Quincy Adams called our government a "complicated machine," and so it is, if it can be a government for the whole people and by the people and at the same time disfranchise the women, who represent the majority of the people. The right of forming their own constitution and the right of suffrage are those in which the freedom of a Republic is embodied, but women are debarred from these rights in most of the States, thereby making a nation of free men and bond women. An idiot can commit a crime and go unpunished, but woman, who is classed with him, as regards the making of the laws, is punished by these same laws if they do not obey them, and if they own property they have to pay taxes just the same as men, and taxation without representation is called tyranny in this "Land of the Free."

The duties of voters are the same in all elections, whether in the school district, the city, the county, the State, or the United States, namely to vote for that which is the best measure, and women are as well qualified to vote intelligently as the masculine voter, (and many more so,) whose only required qualification is sex, a quality for which no one is responsible. Women have the same interest in the public welfare, in the maintenance of order and the triumph of right principles as men can possibly have. The Bill of rights of Kentucky declares that "all power is inherent in the people; that government exists for their good and by their consent." Is it true?

Now, if any government were destroyed society would be ruined and all other governments be worthless, and it would soon come to pass if women were allowed no voice in the family government. The right to vote implies the right to be voted for and the right to hold office. The men have given women the rights of the rights by not be consistent and give them the vote? If women are qualified to be voted for and elected to fill important offices, as many are, are they not qualified to be legal voters? A woman is superintendent of the city of New York, yet she cannot vote, simply because of the accident of birth, not for lack of intelligence and ability.

I appeal to the thinking men and women—is it fair, if all are born free and equal, as our Declaration of Independence declares?

There is a great wrong being perpetrated against American womanhood. The United States is called "The land of the noble free," but the monarchs of Europe have often been more wisely and well-treated women. Queen Victoria, of England, was a model wife, mother and ruler, and her reign was one of great prosperity and peace. But had she been a man, she would have been a failure, for she could not have served her country as she did, simply because she was a woman.

The jury was out two and a half hours and stood 11 to 1 for conviction. On the stand Needham testified that he had been instructed by the Commercial Life Insurance Co. of Indianapolis, for which he was an agent, to date all Kentucky business from New Albany, Ind., as the company is an Indiana corporation. # INFECTIOUS DISEASES OF LIVE STOCK EXPLAINED

Twenty-Fifth Annual Report of Bureau of Animal Industry of Agricultural Department Contains Articles on Tuberculosis and Many Other Maladies.

The twenty-fifth annual report of the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, just published, is an illustrated cloth-bound volume of 622 pages containing special articles and information of both popular and scientific interest. This report is issued as a congressional publication, and a limited number of copies are assigned to each senator, representative and delegate in congress for distributing among his constituents. The department has no copies for general distribution, its quota being required for its employees and such others as cooperate in its work. The book is on sale to the public by the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C.

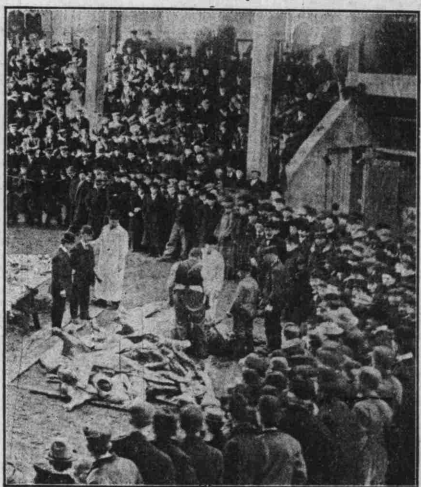

Tuberculosis in its various aspects is the subject of three articles. Dr. A. D. Melvin, the chief of the bureau, in considering the economic importance of this disease among the food-producing animals, estimates that the financial loss from this disease is at least $24,000,000 annually. Dr. E. C. Schroeder, superintendent of the bureau's experiment station, points out the danger from the tuberculous cow to human health. His paper is accompanied by a number of striking illustrations showing cows of this appearance which are really affected with tuberculosis and giving off the germs were imported with a view to building up a milk goat industry in this country, were found to be affected by Malta fever, a disease which prevails to a considerable extent among people, as well as goats, on the island of Malta and other places on the Mediterranean. After keeping the goats under strict quarantine for some time it was finally considered necessary to destroy them all.

Other articles contained in the report are as follows: "The Need of State and Municipal Meat Inspection to Supplement Federal Inspection," by Dr. A. M. Partridge; "State Legislation Regulating the Standing of Stallions and Jacks for Public Service," by Roy A. Cave; "The Development of Livestock Shows and Their Influence on Cattle Breeding and Feeding," by E. G. Ritzman; "The Value of the Poultry Show," by Robt R. Sloum. The volume also contains statistics of the live stock markets and meat inspection and other miscellaneous information regarding the livestock industry.

Some of the articles in the report have been issued separately in pamphlet form and can be obtained in this form on application to the department of agriculture.

of that disease in such a way as to be dangerous to consumers of their milk. Dr. John R. Mohler and Henry J. Washburn of the pathological division have a paper dealing with the nature and character of animal tuberculosis and federal measures for its repression.

The bureau's field experiments with serum for the prevention of cholera are described in a paper by Dr. W. B. Niles. Doctor Melvin in another paper presents a plan for the control of hog cholera by the systematic use of serum.

Three diseases of live stock about which little has heretofore been known—namely, infectious anasarca or swamp fever of horses, and chronic bacterial dysentery of cattle—are described in articles by Dr. John R. Mohler. An article by Dr. R. J. Ford presents the results of an investigation as to the damage caused to the livestock industry by smelter fumes in the Deer Lodge valley of Montana. Dr. B. H. Ransom describes methods of preventing losses from stomach worms in sheep. The results of experiments to determine the length of time that typhoid bacilli will remain alive in milk and butter are given in an article by Dr. Henry J. Washburn.

George M. Rommel, in "Notes on the Animal Industry of Argentina," gives information about that country, which is a growing competitor with the United States for the English meat trade. In a paper on "Improved Methods for the Production of Market Milk by Ordinary Dairies," Messrs. C. B. Lane and Karl E. Parks describe simple and inexpensive methods within the reach of the average dairyman by which clean and wholesome milk may be produced.

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease which appeared in November and December, 1908, among livestock in Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland, is described in a paper by Dr. A. D. Melvin. After a few months of vigorous work by federal and state officers the disease was eradicated at an expense of over $300,000 to the department of agriculture and about $113,000 to the states.

IMPORTANCE OF SEED BREEDING

Wonderful Little Storehouses of Energy, Beauty and Utility Bred for Proving Better Quality of Grain.

One of the most important things which the division of agriculture of the Minnesota experiment station has done for the benefit of the farmers is the breeding of pedigreed seeds.

It has been known for a long time that animals could be bred for efficiency along certain desired lines, but the knowledge is of comparatively recent date that seeds—those wonderful little storehouses of energy, beauty and utility—could be similarly bred, and that this is pre-eminently true, however, has been ably demonstrated by the agricultural division, which has produced several varieties of improved grains, including corn, barley, oats, fax and wheat, which are much more prolific than the grains commonly grown and which have, in their increased yield, netted the farmers of the state many thousands of dollars. These seeds may be obtained from the station or from a certificate of pedigree and purity of seed is issued to the purchaser.

Prof. Andrew Boss, chief of this division, states that something over 15,000 bushels of pedigreed seeds have been distributed at first hand to 248 co-operating seed growers and that these men have in turn supplied so many farmers that it is estimated that from one-fourth to one-third of the grain growing in Minnesota is now seeded annually to improved seeds developed at the experiment station.

Insures Success. Good seed, good culture, good crop and good farmers go together. Don't bank on luck.

Stop Women And Consider

This Fact—that in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, was for years under her direction, and has ever since her decease continued to advise women. Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty causes them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. Such questioning and examination is unnecessary. Without cost you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

ROOTS THAT NEEDED SOAKING

Pat at Least Told the Exact Truth in His Application for Whiskey.

The town of Dedham is under prohibition law, apothecaries alone being permitted to sell alcoholic stimulants. The other day a son of the Emerald Isle entered a drug store there, and taking a bottle from his pocket, asked for a quart of whiskey. The salesman asked to what use it was to be put, and the reply was:

"To soak roots in it."

The order was filled, and the clerk, after handing over the bottle and its contents, inquired, in a conversational manner:

"What kind of roots are you going to soak?"

Pocketing the bottle, the customer said:

"The roots of my tongue, he jabs!"

—Argonaut Storyette (1886).

Pennsylvania's Lapse of Memory. Forgetting that he had started to draw a gallon of whiskey from a barrel in the cellar, A. C. Hilday, proprietor of the Hotel Hilday, Bloomsburg, Pa., left the spigot turned on and went upstairs. Two hours later he remembered it and hastened there. He found that it had all run away and into the sewer. His loss because of his lapse of memory will be about $100.—From the Philadelphia Record.

FOR CONGRESS:
HON. BEN JOHNSON,
Of Nelson County.

The triumphal progress of ex-President Roosevelt through Europe continues. Never in the history of the modern civilized world has a private citizen been received with such enthusiastic demonstrations of admiration and good will as has Col. Roosevelt. Never has a civilian been showered by royalty with such honors as Theodore Roosevelt. Col. Roosevelt was last week in Paris, the honored guest of the municipality and the nation, and where he was shown every courtesy and attention which that past master of politeness and refinement the Frenchman can show. On Saturday Col. Roosevelt lectured before the French Academy, of which he is a member, on "Individual Citizenship." Altho on occasions too frequent to enumerate, Roosevelt has astonished the world by his brilliancy and versatility, yet during his wonderful career he has probably never made a more brilliant address or delivered a truer sermon than that before the learned French assemblage of Saturday.

Col. Roosevelt's reception throughout Europe is not only a tribute to a great and a magnetic man, but demonstrates as well the regard in which America is now held by the world. If Roosevelt were from Chili, Peru, Zanzibar or Borneo he would not be supping with Princes and hob-nobbing with Kings.

$20,000 Fire At Lebanon.

Lebanon, Ky., April 30.—Fire was discovered early this morning in the lively stable known as the Norris Hotel stable and belonging to B. S. Mattingly, of Louisville. The blaze had gained considerable headway before it was discovered and when the fire department arrived the structure was doomed. It was an old frame building and the flames spread rapidly as a stiff breeze was blowing from the South.

The surrounding buildings which were of a frame make, were soon in a blaze. Sparks off the fire were blowing thick and fast over the business section of the city presenting one of the most threatening and destructive fires ever known here. The wind carried the flames to the Lebanon Carriage & Implement Company, one of the largest business concerns here and completely gutted the building, burning a great deal of the stock.

For a while the Hardesty Hotel was in great danger and nearly all of the guests moved out, but the splendid work of the fire company soon put it out of danger.

The loss by the fire will amount to about $20,000. Five horses in the lively stable and two in the stable of the carriage and implement company were burned, valued at $1,200, with no insurance. Jerry Thornton was proprietor of the lively stable and his loss on two horses, buggies, harness, etc., is about $1,500, with no insurance. T. A. Mattingly, proprietor of the Lebanon Carriage and Implement Company, was the heaviest loser by the fire, $8,000 on stock, with $3,000 insurance. The building belonged to J. M. Faulner, of Louisville, whose loss is $3,000, with insurance $1,000.

W. R. Clark, blacksmith, lost $200 on live stock, $1,500, insured. The Hardesty Hotel loss on outhouses was about $200.

Mr. Russell estimates that it will require about two years to complete the task. He will leave in a few days to begin the preliminary work, but will return to Kentucky in time to get out a second edition of his Kentucky Statutes.

While at his work Monday, Edward Luckett, of Calvary was suddenly taken ill and shortly after being moved to his home he fell into a state of unconsciousness, in which condition he remained until his death, which occurred Tuesday of last week. ## How to Cure Eczema, Pimples and Dandruff.

We desire to say that when we took the agency for ZEMO we were convinced that it was a valuable remedy for Eczema, pimples and dandruff. Yet, we must frankly admit that Zemo has far exceeded our expectations as a treatment for skin diseases. We are pleased to state that we shall continue the agency as Zemo has given splendid results wherever recommended. Our customers like Zemo too, because it is a clean, vegetable liquid for external use. ZEMO effects its cures by drawing to the surface of the skin and destroying the germ life that causes the disease, leaving the skin clear and healthy. It does not soil the clothing or linen and can be used freely on infants. With every purchase we give a booklet on skin diseases, in simple words explaining how any person can be cured at home of any form of skin or scalp diseases by this clean, scientific remedy. ## No Hope for Thaw.

Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White, must remain in the Matteawan Insane Asylum.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, handed down a decision recently which sets aside the appointment by Justice Tompkins, of the Supreme Court, of a referee to take testimony bearing on Thaw's possible transfer.

The court holds in effect that Matteawan is the proper place for Thaw under the circumstances.

Struck Pay Dirt.

A dispatch to the dailies from Los Angeles, Cal., says that John Thompson, colored, who last Wednesday was penniless now has $50,000 in his pockets and left as a Pullman porter on the Louisville Thompson is a native of Harrodsburg, being a son of the late James Thompson. He made a lucky strike at Blodgett Tanks in Riverside county, Cal. Thompson went to Southern California as a Pullman porter on the Santa Fe. Contracting the gold fever from the talk of some prospectors he met at San Bernardino, the negro struck out from the graining camp six weeks ago and with the luck of a tenderfoot stumbled across a rich gold-bearing ledge at Blodgett Tanks. He put in four weeks sinking on the ledge. Mining experts were at once taken with his rock. They made a number of tests and offered him $100 cash for his locations. This offer was steadily raised until they had offered him $100,000 cash and he flatly refused to consider less than $50,000. The experts communicated with their principals in New York and shipped East 1,000 pounds of ore. Wednesday afternoon they received a telegram to close the deal at $50,000.
